NOLAN INJURED BY FALL FROM TROLLEY CAR

Conductor Did Not Stop Car to Ascertain Extent of Man's Injury.

Thomas J. Nolan of Brooks street while alighting from a north bound East Main street car at Putnam street about 5:30 p. m. yesterday afternoon was thrown to the ground as the car suddenly lurched forward, landing on his hip, which is believed to be fractured. Dr. George B. Cowell of Noble avenue brought the injured man to his home on Brooks street. According to two witnesses of the accident, Chas. Bundock and Michael Conroy, two East Side youngsters, they had signaled the conductor to stop the car at Putnam street. Both boys had alighted as the car slowed up, at the first cross walk. Nolan had intended to get off at the second cross walk. It is believed that the conductor not seeing Nolan alighting gave the signal for the motorman to go on. Nolan stated that he was thrown heavily to the ground. The car kept on its way. People rushed out of nearby houses to aid the injured man. Dr. Cowell was called and he was taken to his patient the car from which Nolan had fallen was seen to be retracing its way back to Putnam street. The motorman of the car refused to stop until a number of women who were present rushed out into the street. After the car was stopped, the conductor whose number was noticed as 2978, took Nolan's name and then the car proceeded on its way.

WORK BEGUN ON U. M. C. ADDITION

Building Will Cost $65,000 and Equipment $125,000, and is One of Several to be Erected.

Ground was broken today for the eight story factory building of the U. M. C. Co., at Barnum avenue, Pauline street, Helen street and Arctic street. The building will be of brick and will cost about $65,000. It will cover an area 38x60 feet and is one of a number of buildings which the company intends erecting on the square adjacent to its plant. From an authoritative source it was learned that the machinery equipment of the plant will cost in the neighborhood of $125,000. The names of the contractors who will erect the building have not been announced. A shot tower, raising from the roof of and over the building, the structure now being built, is contemplated.

FOX APPROVES JUDSON DRAFT

"As I understand it, the legislature must proceed directly in such cases to the election of a new method of committees on elections, made up of laymen and proceeding without the safeguards of judicial tribunals."
"Although there are a number of things in Mr. Judson's new provisions with regard to the election court which I like to discuss," said Fox, "only upon one. He makes the court consist of only one judge instead of two, which is the rule in England and Scotland. I feel that such a change is necessary or nothing results. The reasons given for this amendment are that a single judge rendering a decision is more likely to be influenced by the constitution than a special court consisting of two judges and secondarily the danger of blocking the regular business of the courts by a number of trials of contested elections would be greatly lessened by having only one judge."
"On the other hand I feel it too much responsibility to put on any judge. For both judge and candidate concerned, it seems to me much wiser to have a court of two judges should be necessary in order to attain that end."
"I differ from Mr. Judson on some important points. I wish to say again that he has done a good piece of work in preparing this bill and as a citizen of Connecticut I feel grateful to him for doing so. I hope he will win still more of the public gratitude by preparing and getting through a constitutional amendment that will remedy the present deplorable state of affairs."

Tragic Circumstances of Killarney Drowning

(Special from United Press.)
Boston, June 24.—Tragic were the circumstances which were recorded here today of the drowning of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Loughhead of Charlestown with eleven other tourists by the capsizing of a rowboat during a gale yesterday on the Lakes of Killarney, Ireland. Neither the son nor daughter of the Loughheads had been informed today of the loss of their parents. The son, Charles Loughhead, aged 23, a professor in Wilbraham Academy, is in a private hospital in Somerville and the daughter, Miss Sylvia Loughhead, aged 17, graduated this evening from the St. Mary's Latin School. Relatives and friends determined that neither should be told of the tragic death until their bodies were recovered. They also agreed that neither should be told of the tragedy until their bodies were recovered. The engagement was announced today of Attorney Arthur M. Marsh, of Stoddard, Marsh & Stoddard, to Miss Irene Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Almon J. Griffin of Montclair, N. J.

STEEL STOCK HEAVY BAIL FIXED

BOND IN CASE OF MAN CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLING FROM HIS BROTHER'S ESTATE $11,000.

Boyce Therefore In Jail

Accused Man Was Executor Under Will and Has Been Missing from Bridgeport Since 1905—Arrested by Detective Cronan in Ossining, N. Y.
William G. Boyce, who formerly kept a blacksmith shop on State street near Clinton avenue and who had been missing from this city since 1905, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Ossining, N. Y., by Detective Cronan of the Bridgeport Detective bureau, on a charge of embezzlement. Boyce waived examination and came to this city last night with the detective without demanding extradition. When arrested this morning in the city court his counsel Judge Edwin K. Nicholson asked that a continuance be granted until June 29. This was done and prisoners were held in $11,000 bonds in default of which he went to jail.
In 1904 Albert Boyce, a brother of the accused, died and in his will named William G. Boyce as his executor. For a time the executor was true to his trust and made a partial distribution of the estate, turning over to the widow all the money in the savings banks, which amounted to about $1,800 and a like sum as directed in the will to the Deane family. Boyce, L. I., guardian of the only son Albert Boyce.
After this the executor departed to parts unknown, taking with him 100 shares of U. S. Steel stock. At that time the stock was selling at 27 and today at 53. It has since been discovered that Boyce had made a transfer of the stock shortly after leaving this city. The widow, who is now Mrs. William G. Boyce, was in court today, but did not testify because of the continuance of the case. When Boyce is brought to trial he will have to account to the court for the transfer of the bonds and the other for his failure to make a proper accounting of the estate in inventory to the court and to the Deane family. He will place their affairs in the hands of Attorney Henry Stevenson.

(Special from United Press.)
Constantinople (via Philippopolis), June 24.—Turks are today facing another revolution in the opinion of close students of national affairs. The friction between the Young Turks and the old rulers has been increasing steadily and a clash between them in the near future is now believed to be inevitable.
The Young Turks are thoroughly dissatisfied with Sultan Mehmed V who is declared to be nothing more than the tool of Chetvek, who in turn is declared to be a reactionary at heart and the opponent of the reformers. The true position of Chetvek is becoming more clearly defined as he continues to strengthen his grip on the Sultan, the Young Turks say. The Young Turks are said to be planning the enforced abdication of Mehmed V and the substitution of Prince Yusuf Eszenzen, as Sultan.

A New City a Thousand Years Old.

Budapest, whose front is circled with lights like a crown, whose hills rise dark and feathery above the river, whose parliament buildings run along the bank and are second to none but Westminster—Budapest, bright, flashing, gay, beautiful, modern and rich, ardent and executive, close built and amalgamated, blunder of peoples is the product of only a few decades and yet at its last exposition it celebrated its thousandth birthday. Pest, to the right of the river—for the cities are twin and divided by the Danube—Pest dates back to 1200, and Buda was the Ofen of the Romans. Buda climbs up the opposite hill, today magnificently new, but soon round with green crumbling walls that mark the passing of the original founders whose painted galleys came up the Danube from the Black sea. The twentieth century civilization, sharply new and powerful, must for a moment be brushed aside and the Buda of mediæval times put in its stead.—Marie Van Vorst in Harper's Magazine.

Gathering Cloves.

Cloves are now cultivated in many of the tropical regions of the earth. A clove tree begins to bear at the age of ten years and continues until it reaches the age of seventy-five years. There are two crops a year, one in June and one in December. The tree is an evergreen and grows from forty to fifty feet high, with large oblong leaves and crimson flowers at the end of small branches in clusters of from ten to twenty. The tree belongs to the same botanical order as the guava. The cloves, which are the undeveloped buds, are at first white, then light green and at the time of gathering bright red. Pieces of white cloth are spread under the trees at harvesting time and the branches are beaten gently with bamboo sticks until the cloves drop. They are dried in the sun, being tossed about daily until they attain the rich dark color which proclaims them ready for shipment.

Cards and Their History.

Cards are square shaped pieces of pasteboard printed with various devices and employed as a business medium by money changers. They are usually made up in packs of fifty-two, one for each week of the year. A good many people play cards for pleasure, in which case their opponents are said to be buying experience. In most card games the rule is that the cards may be cut, but not otherwise marked. This rule is not strictly observed in games in which only three cards are used. Indeed, the marking of cards has attained a high degree of perfection since the introduction of numerous card games and systems. Fashions change in card games as in everything else. Old maid, for instance, is nowadays seldom played in the best clubs. Playing cards should not be confused with score cards, which are rather larger, or with visiting cards, which are smaller.—Fry's Magazine.

A Rhineland Legend.

There is a Rhineland legend of three German robbers who, having acquired by various atrocities what amounted to a very valuable booty, agreed to divide the spoil and to retire from so dangerous a vocation. When the day appointed for this purpose arrived one of them was dispatched to a neighboring town to purchase provisions for their last carousal. The other two secretly agreed to murder him on his return that they might divide his share between them. They did so. But the murdered man was a closer calculator even than his assassins, for he had previously poisoned a part of the provisions, that he might appropriate to himself the whole of the spoil. This precious triumvirate were found dead together.

Salt Codfish Omelet.

Soak a piece of salt codfish about six inches square overnight. Split six crackers and lay them in cold water, just enough to cover them. In the morning pick the fish fine and mix with the soaked crackers, three well beaten eggs and a piece of butter the size of an egg, also salt and pepper. Take one quart of milk and add to it one dessertspoonful of flour. Boil five minutes and pour over in the dish in which it is to be baked. Bake twenty minutes.—Boston Post.

Regatta in England.

The first regatta in England was in 1775, and it was imported into that country by Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, who had been impressed by the water show of Venice. There was no series of races. There was a procession of city barges to a "temporary octagon" where there was revelling that night and well into the next day. Only seven of the company were drowned on the return journey, which speaks well for the average sobriety of the crowd.—London King.

Breakfast Hours.

A traveler stopped at a hotel in Greenland, where the nights are six months long, and as he registered asked a question of the clerk.
"What time do you have breakfast?"
"From half past March to a quarter to May."—Harper's Weekly.

Boring the Bore.

"What do you do to get rid of bores?"
